

OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL
UNITED STATES POSTAL SERVICE

October 13, 2017

Randall Zelznick
6125 Hilltop Dr
Brookhaven, PA 19015-1306

Dear Mr./Ms. Zelznick,

I am writing to inform you that the United States Postal Service, Office of Inspector General ("OIG") recently learned of an OIG data theft that occurred in 2005. Some personal information, including social security numbers, was contained in that data. The investigation into the theft is ongoing, so I am unfortunately not able to provide more detail at this time.

We are notifying you now because your name and social security number were included in the stolen data. Your information may be in our data because you were interviewed as a part of, or were a potential witness in, an OIG investigation. We are advising you of this incident so that you can be on alert for irregularities and take whatever protective measures that you feel are necessary.

Even though the theft occurred over twelve years ago, the OIG has purchased a year of credit monitoring on your behalf. Enclosed with this letter you will find information on how to enroll in the Identity Force credit monitoring program, offered to you at no cost.

- Please note the promotion code provided at the top of this letter. You will need this code when you contact Identity Force.
- You have until December 31, 2017, to take advantage of the monitoring service.

This is not a solicitation, but rather an effort by the OIG to protect you. We encourage you to take advantage of this service.

In addition to credit monitoring, there are other useful sources of information you may want to consult.

- One of the best sources of information on identity theft and data protection is the Federal Trade Commission ("FTC"), www.ftc.gov/idtheft.
- You may also learn more by calling the FTC's Identity Theft Data Clearinghouse at 1-877-438-4338 (TTY: 1-866-653-4261).
- Additionally, you may request a free credit report online at www.annualcreditreport.com.

The US Postal Service Office of Inspector General (OIG) is offering you credit monitoring services through IdentityForce for one year, at no cost to you. The OIG is offering this as a precautionary measure, and is paid for by the OIG. We strongly suggest you take advantage of these services as an additional means of protecting your personal identity and credit.

If you sign up, IdentityForce will provide a comprehensive suite of protection, including:

- a. Monitoring your credit activity, with an alert if IdentityForce sees anything unusual
- b. Up to 4 credit reports throughout the year through IdentityForce
- c. Full-service identity theft restoration assistance, helping to repair your identity in the event of any fraudulent activity
- d. Identity theft insurance to reimburse certain expenses if your identity is stolen
- e. A 24/7 Customer Service Line and a dedicated website for those affected by USPS OIG Data Theft
